

A Love Story of Two Flowers

Andre Chechin

A long time ago there lived two flowers. One of them loved the other. He tried to hug her and kiss her, but she turned away, pulled in her petals, and bent down to the ground.

He realized she didn't love him and he gave her her freedom, but he wasn't happy. His feelings boiled inside because he was angry with her.

When the autumn came, the wind blew and picked her petals off and blew them away. The wind left only one petal for him to remember her by. He held onto her image for a short time, but then winter came and pressed against his mind and buried his dream.

He slept until spring, when life began anew.

* * *